Well, sir; Evans, suspecting something wrong, facad up stream and, with Colonels Bee and Bartie, threw him self into the field just beyond the valley. To maks a look story short, when the ral's attacking column, c'umsily handled struck Evans they thought Besuregard's whole army was in their from. If they had nushed forward they would have crushed Beauregard. No doubt of it. Evans with a handful of men, held them for an hour and a half and when he was forced back, he retreated to this plateau, where the figurest fighting was done. The Confeder ates can past this house towards General Jackson who had just posted his brigade at that ridge a few hundred yards to the north-ast of the house. Jackson's men were lying flit on the ground, but Jackson was on his horse. He sat there as still and stead s: ss this clocument. Now and then he waved his hand to his men, among whom shells were falling and around whose heads bullets were flying like bees in harvest time. A soldier of that brigade was here a few years ago and he told me that he thought it too her to stay. He was slipping back, when Jacks in recip, him, lifted his hand. The fellow dropped igto his place."

"As he talked Mr. Hemy lad his visuar beyoud the lawa into a field where grew long grass, daisies, dandelions, deck weeds, plue this leand thick y matted blackberry briare. When killed she was in her 85th year and confined to her bed by infirmities of fge. Her husband, Dr. Isano Henry, was a surgeon in the United States Navy, on board the frigate Constellation.

"When the artillery began to rock the hill and shot came tearing through the house Mrs. Herry's invalid son took his mother in his arms and bere her scross the field down the bill to a sheltered place. Two daughters of the house followed. When the tide of battle momentarily rolled away to the right the party returned to the house, but searcely had they resched the lawn when a fiercer serm than ever circled around. Mrs. Henry was shot in several places, one of the daughters was made deaf for life and the terrible sheek hastened the son's death. Great locust trees that then stood around the lawn were broken off and swent down, and from their stumps the lesser locusts now standing have grown. In a grove of these trees, on a grass covered mound in the rear of the house, is a monument of rough red granite, whereon are soratched the names of visiting voteraus. The shaft is capped with shells, one of which was hurled by "Long Tom" from Fairfax Heights for socoss Bull Ruo. Though the monament was ru up by Union soldiers, the bones of five Confederates are buried beneath. Pushing aside some hollyheeks, now in flower around the mound, I was able to read the isscription: 'In Mamory of the Patriots who felt at Bult Run, July 21st, 1861' With taux reine the diver let his horses down the farm road leading from the piateau, and orossing Young's Branch, we omeignd upon the Warrenton pike. The Stone House known to history still stands at the inters clion of the Suil y Springs and Warrenton roads, and we drack from the same wel whence thirs:y hundeads drow refreshing draughts twenty years ago. From the Stone House along the pike to the stone bridge across Bul Run it is a long mile, the read being up hill and down and twice "The Yankees retreated along this road after the fighting on the Henry farm. "The bridgs looks old, but steadfast. A wall of stone is on either side and the roadbed on the bridge is of red clay, just as on the pike is now uarrow and sluggish, but a rain storm sends the waters reacing down between the tigh walls of red rock and the dry undergrowth of summer in the run's race track is frequently supmerged. To the east is Fairfex county. filled upon this side with fields and thick woods, in the depths of which the bones of men and borses are found to this day. To the west, along the road that took us thither, stretch the undulating lands of Prince William county. Unings are somewhat desolate at the bridge, but it is a novelty to sit on the scope buttress and read of wer's deadly doings while from the dack grass and dark water below the bull long macks the dium. G. M." mocks the diun.
